

ATALM Archives Summit
Protocols for Native American Archival Materials
Wednesday, September 9
9:00AM - 5:00PM
Agenda

Description: Since the development of “The Protocols for Native American Archival Materials” in 2006, the document has generated significant discussion and debate both nationally and internationally surrounding the proper care of Indigenous archives housed at non-tribal repositories and how these guidelines should be successfully implemented. Numerous non-tribal repositories successfully implemented and developed collaborative guidelines and relationships with tribal communities. Based on the original intent of the Protocols as a living document, this pre-conference Summit brings together original drafters of the Protocols, as well as key allies in the United States and Canada, to review and reflect on lessons learned from the Protocols and other key documents, to make clarifying alterations and updates to the document based on case studies, conversations, and research. The group will develop additional information regarding the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples with the larger goal of contributing to the efforts of decolonizing Indigenous archives. The results of the gathering will be reported at a regular conference session to inform the larger membership and plan for future publications on the topic. Attendees will serve as key participants in the discussions, document development, and future publications. (Link to PNAAM: <http://www2.nau.edu/libnap-p/>)
